

Special meeting to tackle bylaws

By JOHN GREEN

North Saanich council will hold a special meeting at 2:30 p.m. Thursday at which two bylaws to reverse the zoning allowing Bob Wright's marina development on Blue Heron Basin will be re-introduced.

Council had voted at a special meeting Dec. 9 to have the two bylaws prepared, but at another special meeting Dec. 16 decided the Dec. 9 meeting was improperly called.

The bylaws were on the agenda at the regular meeting Monday, but in the meantime Wright had obtained a court order requiring the municipality issue building permits for his project, and the permits were issued Friday.

It was agreed there would be no discussion of the subject until council receives advice from its lawyer at the Thursday special meeting.

There was a debate as to whether the minutes of the Dec. 9 meeting should be adopted, with Ald. Alan Cornford arguing that since the meeting was improper there could not be any minutes.

It was decided to leave the matter until minutes of the Dec. 16 meeting were available. In other council news:

•Ald. Eric Sherwood reported he and SANSCHA secretary Dick Leigh would meet with Norman Wright and Gerry Edwards of the committee which is attempting to have Royal Trust replaced as trustee for the North Saanich Memorial Park property.

Council received a copy of a letter in which the committee informed Royal Trust a public meeting will be held Jan. 28 to deal with the issue.

Discussion indicated the trust company is also planning to call a public meeting on the subject in January.

•Council voted to increase the residential charge for water in 1983 to $1 per thousand gallons, up from 95 cents, but will discuss in committee a proposal from Ald. Jim Cumming that there be lower bulk rates for agricultural use.

The Capital Regional District is increasing its charge to the municipality for water, from 31 cents to 37 cents.

•Council hired the Victoria engineering firm of Graeme and Murray Consultants Ltd. to supervise construction of the satellite fire hall, at a price of $11,800.

•Cumming reported it would cost the CRD $650,000 or more if Ganges residents defeat a referendum to approve construction of the sewer system there, he moved North Saanich advise the CRD it will not accept an assessment for a share of such costs unless North Saanich taxpayers approve them in referendum:

"If Ganges can refuse to pay, surely we can."

When Ald. Eric Sherwood objected that a referendum would cost North Saanich as much as its share of the sewer cost, Cumming admitted that his tongue was in his cheek:

"I'm not suggesting that we have a referendum, just that we don't pay the money without one."

Hard times, soft hearts

• Christmas fund stands at $11,111.72

By PEGGIE ROWAND

When The Review/Sidney Lions Christmas Fund was launched with a goal of $5,000, we thought we'd succeed, judging by the community's response and kindness in previous years.

But we didn't expect to more than double our target. On Friday the fund stood at $10,551.72 and money was still coming in. Last count Monday at 5 p.m. the total had jumped to $11,111.72.

More than 100 families, representing some 350 people on the Saanich Peninsula, have already received substantial hampers and food vouchers designated Safeway or Sidney Super Foods which will purchase additional produce — fresh fruit, vegetables, turkeys, hams, etc.

Food vouchers are in varying amounts depending on the number of people in a family.

Mike Sealey, who headed up the Lions operation, said Sunday although hampers and vouchers had been delivered Lions were standing by to pack more as names were still coming in, "some of them really hard cases."

Response to a request for food and toys has been magnificent. The food surplus may well be enough to kick off the proposed food bank — Roy Hunt has offered dry storage space — and Peninsula Community Association members who took over distribution of toys this year report there were more than enough for local needs. Under a new system initiated by the PCA parents were able to choose toys for their children.

There were enough leftover to help out in the Gulf Islands and some will be set aside and stored for next Christmas.

The six-week campaign has been like a fairy tale as money and food flooded into The Review office and staffers were busy keeping pace with donations while Sidney Lions were kept equally busy daily removing the mountains of food and gifts that filled all available office space.

Sidney Rotary held a dinner Dec. 15 and raised a total of $1,253 from fines, raffles, straight donations — people really dug into their pockets, says one observer — and the meal itself. Rotarians paid $7.50 a head at the Travelodge and received only a bowl of soup, a bun and crackers, with $4. a head going to the fund.

Saanich Teachers' Association turned up trumps, collecting $640 from teachers in a one-day blitz; St. Paul's United Church gave $500 and a scout-guide carol service turned in another cheque for $121.61.

And two youngsters — Heather and Adrienne Christie — made wreaths, sold them and donated the proceeds to the fund.

So many people gave, mostly anonymously, and others contributed in a different way. Like the elderly woman who turned up the first night Sidney Lions began packing hampers. She just moved in and got busy.

No one knew who she was — we just presumed she was somebody's wife or friend, Sealey said.

Before she left the woman said she'd lived in the community two years and "just wanted to do something." She couldn't come the next night so sent along her husband to help, Sealey said.

Lions — with the help of wives — have already put in a total of 200 man hours.

At the last minute, a Christmas tree in The Review office, decorations courtesy Sidney Shoppers Drug Mart, was rushed out to a couple with several children. Sealey said the family wasn't on welfare and "in dire straits."

This year's effort to help people in distress has been greatly helped by the PCA. The association's successful

Battle lost, not war

"We've lost the first battle but the war's not lost" — that's the word from Ald. Eric Sherwood after he and two other North Saanich aldermen failed in a bid to halt Bob Wright's marina expansion at Blue Heron Basin.

Sherwood and aldermen Edgar Farthing and George Westwood were out-manoeuvred at a Dec. 16 special council meeting when a procedural technicality prevented first reading of two bylaws which would have prevented Wright going ahead with the expansion.

Ald. Alan Cornford challenged the legality of a Dec. 9 meeting which he argued was not posted and was in contravention of the Municipal Act. Anything arising from the meeting was invalid, he said, and moved the two bylaws emanating from the meeting be struck from the agenda.

Farthing argued it was the "narrowest of narrow technicalities — so narrow as to be beneath notice." He said council members "fell over backwards" "to accommodate Cornford and Ald. Harold Parrott, who seconded Cornford's motion. Farthing said date, time, place for the meeting were discussed and "we observed the spirit of the law."

Mayor Jay Rangel voted with Cornford, Parrott and Cumming.

Sherwood said Saturday there was the possibility of an interim injunction, then perhaps an appeal against a B.C. Court decision Dec. 16 which ordered North Saanich to issue a building permit to Wright.

Mr. Justice Patrick Dohm ruled North Saanich had gone too far to reverse the Wright decision: referring to the rezoning of Wright's property, North Saanich relinquishing the foreshore lease last summer and the election of an anti-expansion group in November.

The municipality made a deal, Dohm said. "In my view it is too late to back away from it."

Dohm attached a condition to his order, volunteered by North Saanich Marina's lawyer Louis Lindholm, that improvements to the property will be removed if a group of citizens is successful in challenging last July's zoning bylaw which permitted the expansion.

The group wants to quash the rezoning bylaw but no date for the B.C. Supreme Court hearing has been set.

Ald. George Westwood said the three aldermen will be seeking further legal advice. "There are other avenues to be explored. I'm not satisfied we should stop now."

He said public support had been "tremendous" with a number of phone calls supporting the aldermen's stand 100 per cent and "telling us to keep at it."

With all the issues I've dealt with on council over the years, this has brought the greatest response and support, Westwood said.

And Farthing has no intention on throwing in the towel. He termed the procedural wrangle at the Dec. 16 meeting a "display of childishness."

Farthing said the judge's decision can be appealed and "if we're prepared to pay the price we can do anything."

North Saanich raps Sidney

North Saanich council had an opportunity to voice some long standing criticism against Sidney council when Ald. Jim Lang and a Royal Trust Company representative and lawyer attended a Dec. 16 special meeting.

Ald. Eric Sherwood wanted council to withdraw its objections to Sidney's application for 14 acres of Crown land located in North Saanich. Sidney is currently expropriating 1.2 acres of land at Sanscha and together with a 1961 expropriation by highways for re-routing Pat Bay Highway, land at Sanscha has been reduced from 7 1/4 to 4 1/4 acres.

Sidney sees the 14 acres as an alternative site for the depleted Sanscha lands. Royal Trust hold Sanscha land in trust for the people of Sidney and North Saanich and plans a public meeting in mid-January where it will put various options before residents.

North Saanich finally agreed to withdraw its objections to Sidney's bid for the land to enable Royal Trust to go to the people with some options. It was pointed out since one option was the 14-acre site, the provincial government might turn Sidney down its application for the crown land if it thought there was dissension between Sidney and North Saanich.

But the issue unleashed some anger. Council charged Sidney went over its head in its application for the land, which is in North Saanich and located between the highway and McDonald Park Road.

Rangel told council he was "shocked and surprised" when he found out Sidney had approached the government without first informing North Saanich council.

And he lost his temper with Lang — who'd been given permission to speak to council — when the Sidney aldermen told council it was "negative." Lang said Rangel had been invited to attend meetings "so you could know what was going on."

Rangel told Lang that whatever invitation he received was well after he'd been advised what Sidney was doing and when Lang said "Well, that's negative, too," the mayor shouted he "wouldn't accept veiled criticism."

Royal Trust representative Deborah Miller and the company's lawyer Brenda Milgrath also got a rough ride from Ald. Jim Cumming.

Industrial Park eyed for Tod Inlet

Sam Bawlf announced Friday in Victoria that Vancouver promoter Murray Pezzim has bought 50 per cent of Tod Inlet Estates Ltd., and that most of its 1,200 acres of property around the inlet will be developed as an industrial park for high-technology industries.

Pezzim made a simultaneous announcement in Vancouver. His company, Windmill Enterprises, has paid Bawlf $1 million already and will pay $2 million more for the half share.

Bawlf said the project would not interfere with his proposed resort on the north shore of the inlet in Central Saanich, which requires 90 acres; but that the resort was now viewed as a satellite community to the high-tech development.

He said the industrial park project would begin on 900 acres in an electoral area of the Capital Regional District, and that if rezoning is approved by the CRD work will start in 1983.

Land development will cost $8 million, he said.

An application for rezoning another 300 acres in Central Saanich would come later.

Total potential investment in the park was estimated by Bawlf at $100 million, and potential annual sales revenues at up to $500 million. It could produce 5,000 jobs. He said high-tech experts from California will provide technical assistance for the development.

Pay CRD? Nonsense, says Rangel

North Saanich Mayor Jay Rangel disagrees with Ald. Jim Cumming over payment of the municipality's share of federal grants to the Capital Regional District.

Rangel recently chided Metchison CRD Shirley Wilde for saying municipalities should pay their share of grants to the CRD. Cumming promptly championed Wilde, said she was correct and that North Saanich owed the CRD $45,000.

"It's caught up with us and we should pay," he told The Review last week.

Not so, says Rangel. The mayor is not a director at CRD and says he "has a clear view" of the matter. "I don't get mixed up in their political gamesmanship."

He says both Wilde and Cumming are missing the point. "We're talking about a legal point and the issue is that what we pay is what we're billed for."

Fuming about the CRD's "untrammeled bureaucracy", the mayor says the reason why the country is in such a mess right now is "unrestricted spending at all levels of government."

"And outfits like the CRD are trying to amalgamate everybody's money."

"They're (CRD) saying 'there's something in the legislation that enables us to have this money' — I say that's nonsense."

Rangels says we need hospital planning and regional health services "but we don't need a gigantic bureaucracy — that's the kind of thing we have to stand on."

The mayor says the CRD has enough money to do what they have to do so we "should leave it at that."

The CRD's finance committee is dealing with the issue of monies owed it by municipalities.

Council takes time to study police contract

North Saanich has no real option but to accept an RCMP contract that will see its policing bill rise from zero in 1982 to almost $300,000 in 1985 — but at Monday's meeting the municipal council decided to take time to study the contract before approving it.

The council voted last year to hire the RCMP instead of setting up its own police force, and the arrangement actually began April 1 of this year, but details were only spelled out at a meeting Dec. 9. The provincial government is paying the whole cost for the first year.

The provincial share drops to two-thirds in the second year, and one-third in the third year. From then on local taxpayers pay it all.

The agreement calls for a six-man force at $39,000 a man in the current year. That price goes up steadily, to $42,000 in the second year and $46,300 in the third.

Council is also taking a second look at a decision for an expanded police office at Sidney municipal hall. The police originally preferred a location near Sandown racetrack, but this was rejected because it was reported that the highway access at John Road was going to be closed and the B.C. Buildings Corporation wanted too much for the land.

Mayor Jay Rangel said the 1982 council had developed some doubts about the matter, and that he had recently written to ask the highways ministry to ask just what its plans were for the intersection and to the president of BCBC to ask what the charge would be for the land.

Ald. Eric Sherwood commented the building would cost more than $1 million, so the cost of the land would not be a major factor.

Council also decided to write to the attorney-general asking that the NCO in charge of the North Saanich detachment be required to report on police matters to the mayor and council.

Rangel noted that the requirement for a six-man force is based strictly on population and suggested experience might prove that with no business district and no heavy traffic in the municipality did not need that many men.

Some 52 members of Ardmore Ladies Golf Club attended a Dec. 7 Christmas party and luncheon at the Chatecler Restaurant.

Captain Janet Webb presented prizes of golf towels to winners of "Beat the Champ", then ladies participated in several contests provided by the entertainment committee.

The names of the Spring Plate winners were accidentally omitted from the previous list of competition winners. They were Shorty Smith, runner-up Dot Emmerson.

Hard times

Christmas Fair at Sanscha recently raised a substantial sum and PCA volunteers have been working hard for weeks, collecting toys and arranging for parents to make a selection.

Sidney Lions have performed like trojans and deserve a very special thanks. Members and wives of this fine service club loaned their vehicles for collection and put in hours of work making up hampers and delivering them.

And a truly "giving" community made it all possible. Hard times made for soft hearts and caring neighbours this Christmas, 1982.

Sidney rapped

The alderman declared himself the sole survivor of the people who dealt originally with Royal Trust and said the company was supposed to hold the land, not make disposition of it.

Cumming also told Miller 15 citizens can oppose the trust and asked her if she was aware of "this body of people" (a group whose aim is to appoint an interim board of trustees to replace Royal Trust as the legal owner of Sidney and North Saanich Community Hall Association property).

Miller told council the Royal Trust has been expropriated by Sidney for a small portion of land and had since been dealing in camera with Sidney council.

As Sidney and North Saanich residents were beneficiaries of the trust Miller said it was the company's intention to call a public meeting to advise people of the alternatives at hand. We can take instruction to call a referendum, she added.

Ald. Harold Parrott wanted to know why Sidney had been given the right to acquire the land. "Why not the other way around?" he asked.

Sherwood said it didn't matter who acquired the land "as long as it is given back to us in trust." He told council he would "love to have held on to Snscha" but "we'll have the overpass in there — it will be chopped up piecemeal and won't be worth having."

Ald. Alan Cornford supported a suggestion the 14 acres be transferred jointly to Sidney and North Saanich while Sherwood asked Lang, "Suppose we (North Saanich) acquired this land — would it matter?"

Lang replied the suggestion hadn't been discussed with Sidney council and added the "only purpose was to give the land to the people of Sidney and North Saanich."

Cumming said he wanted the land at Sanscha left for the children — the 14 acres was too far away, he pointed out.

In response, Miller said the Royal Trust was "trying to give as many options as are feasible."

Nose tweak hurts

For Sidney to go over the heads of North Saanich council to acquire crown land in its territory may have seemed the equivalent of tweaking council's collective nose. That tweak hurt and although it happened some time ago and North Saanich has long been apprised of Sidney's intentions, mayor and aldermen still seem to be feeling the pinch — hence the rough ride for Sidney Ald. Jim Lang and Royal Trust spokesman Deborah Miller and lawyer Brenda Milgrath when they met Dec. 6 with North Saanich council.

However, although North Saanich's feelings were obviously hurt and on the surface it seems it would have been more sensitive and politic for Sidney to have first informed North Saanich it was interested in acquiring that 14 acres, we think it highly unlikely there was any genuine intention to slight our neighbors.

Sidney's explanation was that other properties were involved and there had to be a black-out on all information up to a certain point. Sidney insists Mayor Jay Rangel was invited to sit in on meetings; Rangel says the invitation came when he was about to take off for China. But whatever the differences it is time now for North Saanich to take a less jaundiced view of the matter.

If Sidney did make a mistake, it can't be held accountable forever. It's time to get down to brass tacks if the SANSCHA expropriation issue is ever to be resolved.

Happily, despite rumblings and some traces of bitterness, North Saanich council has agreed to withdraw its objections so that residents of Sidney and North Saanich can examine the options and a decision be made in the case of the expropriation of Sanscha land by Sidney council.

While many oldtimers have been and still are against the expropriation of the 1.2 acres for the purpose of making way for Sidney's proposed two-way traffic system, one of the most faithful adherents for keeping Sanscha hall and grounds the way it is has been SANSCHA director and North Saanich Ald. Eric Sherwood, who has finally conceded that highways expropriation in the past and expropriation now and possibly in the future have gradually eroded and will continue to erode the land.

"It won't be worth having," he says.

Sherwood says the only "realistic and logical alternative" is to accept the 14 acres located between the highway and McDonald Park Road and get the best possible deal in the expropriation. The Royal Trust has asked for $484,000, an independent appraisal puts the land value at not much less — $464,000.

Of the many options to be put to the people in January, one spelled out by Sherwood sounds particularly advantageous. He says take the 14 acres of crown land and use some of the expropriation money to put in services there — roads, Hydro, and so on. Apply to Sidney to rezone the Sanscha land — said to be worth $3 million — from institutional to commercial, sell it and build a spanking community hall at the new site.

There are other options — Sanscha Hall can remain where it is and although playing fields will shrink expropriation money could go to upgrade the hall.

Most important is that residents be at that January meeting to hear the alternatives, to gather all the information they need and make a decision about the land which is held in trust for them.

Good use for money

The generosity of Saanich Peninsula communities has exceeded the known need for help — although calls are still coming in — and it seems there will be a substantial sum of money left over from The Review/Sidney Lions Christmas Fund. Response to food was equally generous and although the more than 100 hampers that went out were "very substantial" there's a surplus of dry and canned goods.

The money is being held for emergency situations and if times get any tougher after Christmas, will be used to help people in dire circumstances in the coming winter months.

The Review, Sidney Lions and Peninsula Community Association are considering establishing a food bank here on the peninsula, using the surplus goods as a start. A discussion meeting is planned soon.

Venerable, but...

North Saanich Ald. Jim Cumming has been around a long time and like all people who blaze a few trails and give much of themselves, enjoys a special place in the community. A ruffle crusty at times, Jim's slightly sour remarks generally go unchallenged, however, we think Ald. Edgar Farthing was right to chide Cumming as he did at the Dec. 16 special council meeting for his rudeness to two women representing Royal Trust. For shame, James.

Don't give animal as gift

Christmas is approaching and with the anticipated flurry of excitement the SPCA, Victoria branch, would like to take this opportunity to contribute to a happy and trouble-free holiday.

Pets can be the victims of needless tragedy. With a few precautions, this can be avoided.

Almost everyone is aware of the dangers of feeding turkey bones to pets. Not only can they become lodged in their throats but also their intestines, causing irreparable damage. Apart from deliberately feeding them to pets, please be sure discarded bones are in sealed garbage container.

Other hazards are Christmas plants — poinsettias, holly or mistletoe are extremely poisonous. Christmas decorations are also a danger.

Glass ornaments should be well out of reach of pets or possible breakage, tinsel is easily swallowed and a potential strangler, and of course, we all know the dangers of chewing electrical cords.

Winter is also a time of cold weather. Antifreeze should be handled with care. Clean up any spills as it has a sweet taste, entices pets, and ultimately poisons them. And please, before

hubert beyer at the legislature

Things appear to be tough all over when Nelson Skalbania is forced to declare bankruptcy.

I mean, the poor beggar will have to get rid of two Rolls Royces and make do with only one from now on.

Skalbania's performance on TV was something to behold. Dropping his emotional pants, the master of B.C.'s high-rollers told all and sundry that the tax man had finally gotten to him.

He could no longer "function" with the albatross of tax delinquency hanging over his head, Skalbania said.

And if that wasn't enough to make a few hundred of his financial juggler friends choke on their Bratwurst and beans, Skalbania threw in an appeal to his wife to come back to him.

I swear he could have sold the script for his alleged swan song to any daytime soap opera for a small fortune. Maybe he did.

What's so galling about Skalbania's public lament is the parody it makes of the real hardship and grief suffered by tens of thousands of British Columbians who have fallen victim to the nastiest little depression since the Dirty Thirties.

I'm talking about all those people who have lost their jobs, whose unemployment benefits have expired and who have to exist on the $700 a month that social assistance pays these days.

They don't have the $5,000 it cost to rent a ballroom, serve a meal, albeit a modest one, and tell the world that inflation and recession have caught up with them.

I don't know about you, but I had the distinct urge to put my fist through the television screen when I saw Skalbania snivelling through his melo-dramatic script. Unfortunately, I can't afford a new TV.

The episode was first aired during next morning's Jack Webster show at which Opposition Leader Dave Barrett was the guest star.

Talk about a nauseating response from the both of them. Webster said he was speechless and Barrett mumbled something about a personal tragedy that was repeating itself a thousandfold across the province every day.

Tragedy my foot. When Skalbania is through with his bankruptcy, he'll still have more than you and I will earn together in our life.

I mean, have you got a wife who owns the Georgia Hotel or a reasonable facsimile? Have you got a roster of friends, high-rollers one and all, willing and eager to give you a new start, once you've tripped the people you owe $30 million?

Mark my word, Skalbania will not only land on his feet again, he'll land in the comfortable upholstery of three Rolls Royces before you can say the depression is over.

Despite my anger, I can't deny a certain fascination with Skalbania's style. He's the prototype of a high-roller. He's a high-wire acrobat of business to whom millions are merely numbers.

Men like Skalbania win big and the lose big. Mortals, such as you and I, who take home a modest paycheck and consider ourselves lucky at that, can only watch from afar, as these gamblers ply their trade in the world of high finance.

We may even be allowed a little envy at the sight of millions being made in deals we can't understand, leave alone put together.

People who bulldoze a beautiful, million-dollar mansion, because they don't like the style and want to replace it with a Greek villa, are so far removed from the world of sanity that we

For the first time in history, a substantial cheque raised from proceeds of the British Columbia three per cent sales tax, is on its way to Sidney.

Hon. Einar M. Gunderson, minister of finance, announced this week he has authorized distribution of an interim payment of $5,000,000 to 111 municipalities from 1952-1953 proceeds of the Social Security and Municipal Aid Tax. This amount is $500,000 greater than was distributed in December, 1951.

New apartment block and marina will rise on the waterfront adjacent to the Beacon Ave. wharf in Sidney. New projects are planned on the old mill property between Second St. and the waterfront.

Eric Slegg, managing director of Slegg Bros. Lumber Ltd., told The Review this week that his company as acquired the property from George Gray. The property is approximately eight acres, although only 2 1/4 acres are available for development. The remainder lies beneath the water. It is one of the few properties in Canada where the lines run out to the sea.

Trial runs of the million dollar sewage collection and treatment plants constructed this year in Sidney and Central Saanich are "very imminent" according to Bill Gerry, director of engineering for Capital Regional District.

Completion of the two-stage treatment plants situated on Lochside Drive in Sidney and on Turgoose Point in Central Saanich has been delayed because of summer labour strikes and delays in equipment delivery.

When final testing is completed however, raw sewage now polluting peninsula beaches will be diffused, after treatment via outfalls 2,000 feet offshore.

starting your car, give the hood a solid bang. Cats are notorious for sleeping next to a warm engine.

Pets should not be allowed to run free at any time, unfortunately, there are many pet owners who ignore this law. However, at this time of year it is particularly good advice. The roads are icy and brakes fail. Statistics show that there are more injured animals during December and January than at any other time of year.

Last, but certainly not least, don't give animals as gifts! The last thing anyone or any animal needs is to be plunked into a new home at the most hectic time of year. Not only may the animal be unsuitable but quite likely unwanted.

Christmas lights stolen

This is my first letter to a newspaper but I feel so sad when we try to help others at this holiday time. Someone entered our apartment building and removed every light bulb from the decorations inside the hallway — even the centre light on the ceiling!

We are all elderly in this building and my husband found it quite an effort to hang these decorations for all to enjoy — so it was very disappointing to find them all stolen this morning.

I hope those who took them will enjoy them as it is pointless to replace them only to have them likely taken again. Plus the expense.

Venture Capital

Recently, I was invited to experience a ride in a Boeing jetfoil similar to the Flying Princess which operated between Victoria and Seattle for a brief, trial period in 1980.

A year-round service between Victoria and Seattle is scheduled to commence in April 1983 and will be run by a company formed by a group of local businessmen and investors.

As any businessman will tell you, a new enterprise (and particularly one of this magnitude) requires considerable sums of initial capital and an enormous amount of hard work before it makes its first dollar. Any new venture also requires tremendous courage and the ability and psychological aptitude to deal with risk.

Oil and gas exploration, films, multiple unit residential buildings, office towers, computer software development and many other ventures all need money to carry out their objectives.

Some will succeed, others will not. For those that do succeed, the rewards are appropriate.

To encourage people to invest in Canadian endeavours, the federal government allows companies, appropriately structured, favoured tax treatment. These are sometimes referred to as tax shelters. Very simply, a tax shelter allows an investor to put up a sum of money — usually $5,000 or $10,000 multiples, or "units" — and become a "limited partner" in a company.

Being a limited partner allows the investor to deduct certain operating costs (or add tax credits) of the company against his or her other income, and thereby reduce taxes. This infusion of capital by investors helps a company "get off the ground".

If the company is successful the limited partners share in the success.

Society needs entrepreneurs; people who have a vision, are prepared to act upon their convictions and who put in many hours of work to nurture a fledgling company. They take risks most people would not contemplate, but reap the rewards many people desire.

The local jetfoil company is one local, bold venture.

book chat

By Mary Kieran

Here are some interesting novels you might enjoy over Christmas and in the New Year:

Take This Man, by Frederick Busch. A strange, otherworldliness enshrouds this unusual story of a powerful union between a man, a woman and their son, set on a fog-bound spit of land on the Maine Coast.

A Mother and Two Daughters, by Gail Godwin. Godwin draws a richly detailed portrait of the continued growth of three women, Nell and her two daughters, Cate and Lydia, following the death of a husband and father. This is a realistic novel heavily peopled with authentic, intriguing characters and filled with a series of legitimate family and external emotional crises.

Red Dragon, by Thomas Harris. The author of the best-selling Black Sunday turns in a riveting suspense tale in which Will Graham, who has once caught two psychopathic killers, is called out of retirement by the FBI to track down a third.

Go slowly, Come Back Quickly, by David Niven. British actor David Niven returns to print after the success of several volumes of memoirs, with his first novel. The same light-hearted sense of fun, the abundance of riotous escapades and the ironic commentary are still here, set against locations in Europe, England and Hollywood.

Banker, by Dick Francis. Part mystery, part psychological profile, part horror story — Banker is a winner. Francis peoples his world with fascinating, complex characters: a horse healer, a banker with shattered nerves, a businessman who risks everything at the track. They are all drawn together in a furiously paced, stunningly constructed tale.

Famous Last Words, by Timothy Findley. Ezra Pund's fictional Hugh Selwyn Mauberley is the posthumous narrator of a wild detective-cum-picaresque novel filled with real historical figures of the late 1930s.

A Good Man In Africa, by William Boyd. The misadventures and blunders of Morgan Leafy, a British civil servant stationed in Africa, are the focus of this comic first novel, which is peppered with wry one-liners.

Acceptable Losses by Irwin Shaw. A New York literary agent is jolted from his routine by a life-threatening phone call in this new novel which combines the suspense of a thriller with the intimacy of a character study.

Ah, But Your Land Is Beautiful, by Alan Paton. An exquisitely written novel about the South African Liberal Party movement and its involvement in the 1950s "Defiance Campaign".

Bodily Harm, by Margaret Atwood. After her life in Toronto is shattered by illness, the desertion of her lover, and a death threat, a journalist flees to a Caribbean island and finds herself involved in a revolution.

Lifetime Burning, by Ellen Douglas. An intelligent, humorous, competent, sensual woman who is 62 but not ready to enjoy her "golden years" reveals herself and her world in a diary that is filled with suspense and revelations about the heroine.

Monsignor Quixote, by Grahame Greene. The adventures of a humble Spanish priest — one of God's holy innocents — who, in a characteristic confusion of fact and fiction, believes himself descended from Don Quixote.

Mosquito Coast, by Paul Theroux. An arrogant, eccentric American inventor emigrates with his family to Honduras in this remarkable portrait of minds and cultures at cross purposes.

All these new novels are available through either the Sidney-North Saanich or Brentwood branch of the regional library.

shouldn't even attempt to understand them.

And when the whole house of cards collapses, we may even be excused for feeling a little glee. After all, you takes your chances and you win or lose.

But it's the whining in defeat that's hard to stomach. Skalbania's mea culpa plea made a travesty of the real problems that have gripped the people of this province.

Unless, of course, there was system to Skalbania's beer crying. Who knows what he's got up his sleeve? We may soon find out.

But whatever happens to the man who once owned Wayne Gretzky, don't hold your breath expecting to see him in the soup kitchen lineup.

He may not build any Greek villas for a while, but before too long, he'll be back in business, the business he knows best — high-rolling.

Meanwhile, don't take any wooden nickels from him.

Brentwood library waives fines

The Brentwood branch of the Vancouver Island Regional Library closed early this week for the move to its new location on 1225 Clarke Drive, off West Saanich Road in Brentwood.

Library staff members anticipate the new branch will be re-opening by Dec. 24, and patrons are requested to keep their books until then if possible, or to return them in the book drop at the new library.

Because the move coincides with the holiday season, there will be an amnesty period from Dec. 28 to Jan. 1 when no fines will be charged for overdue library books.

How to protect yourself against drunk drivers

In spite of warnings, publicity and threats of punishment, some people will still drink and drive this holiday season.

Take the following precautions to protect yourself and your family from impaired drivers:

- Wear your safety belt, and make sure everyone else in the car does the same. If you are in an accident, your chances of survival are far greater if you are restrained.

- Use a child restraint for babies and toddlers. (Make sure the restraint is installed according to the manufacturer's instructions.) If you don't have a restraint, buckle the lap belt over the child's hips. Holding a child in your lap is NOT an effective substitute.

- Drive defensively. Keep your eyes moving and watch for potential hazards. Be prepared to take evasive action if necessary.

- Be alert for the telltale signs of a drunk driver: drifting between lanes, driving slowly and following the centre line or curb, reacting slowly or inappropriately to traffic signals, or driving at excessive speed.

Also watch out for the driver whose windows are wide open in cold weather or who is oblivious to other traffic, staring straight ahead with hands clenched firmly on the steering wheel.

If you are close enough to recognize the symptoms, you're too close for your own safety, warns BCAA. Put as much distance as you can between yourself and the erratic driver, even if it means changing your route of pulling over to the side of the road to let the car pass.

- Whenever possible, report obviously drunk drivers to the police for their own and others' protection.

- Don't accept a ride with a person who has been drinking. If necessary, call a cab.

- When possible, avoid the most dangerous driving times — weekend nights between 10 p.m. and 3 a.m. are among the worst.

- Don't let a drunk friend drive.

- If you have had too much to drink, only time will overcome the alcohol's affects on your system. BCAA recommends waiting at least an hour before you drive for every drink consumed.

Flags missing

Two flags are missing from outside Sidney town hall and administrator Geoff Logan would like to know where they are.

The flags were gone Monday morning — even though they'd been secured with a chain and padlock, Logan said they'd been taken before which is why council went to some effort to keep them safe, but thieves cut the chain with bolt cutters.

But flags are costly — even without being stolen, wear and tear and the elements require them to be replaced — and in future the town flag and Canadian flag will go up every morning and come down every evening and go inside for weekends, Logan said.

The B.C. flag wasn't stolen — it was rapped around wires and impossible to get down. Meanwhile, if anyone knows where those two flags are, Logan would like to know.

Council may join regional EDC

Central Saanich council will give a long hard look at becoming involved in the Capital Region Economic Development Commission this year at a cost of $1,975.

The matter will be debated and investigated during regular budget deliberations in the weeks to come.

Mayor Dave Hill argued in favour of being involved in the commission saying a regional approach to economic planning is important. He said because of the agricultural industry in Central Saanich there is room for expansion and development in the industrial park of related businesses such as canning, produce handling and marketing.

He explained the role of the commission is to have an overall look at the area and try to attract new business and larger manufacturing companies to the region.

Total budget of the commission this year is $100,000 of which half is provincially funded and the remainder is municipally funded.

Finance committee chairman Ald. Eric Lewis suggested council look at the budget before committing any funds but Ald. Ron Cullis said it would be "money well spent if we get even one business back to the area."

Children and adults enjoyed fine performance by Four Seasons Theatre while awaiting Santa's arrival Saturday at Sanscha Hall. The event was sponsored by Sidney Retail Merchants.

Jerome always found time to visit grandmother

Harry Jerome — Canada's famous gold medallist runner who died Dec. 7 of a brain seizure — last visited Sidney in June, calling on his grandmother, Mrs. M. C. Sumpton, 655 Wain Road.

He could only stay for a day because he was on a business trip to Victoria but he always found time to visit his grandmother.

"Harry was a happy-go-lucky person, loved by everyone. He will be greatly missed — by me especially," Mrs. Sumpton says.

Jerome's great talent for running was first discovered when he was watching a baseball game. He was yelling at a player, encouraging him to run faster and the player shouted back. If you can do better, you should try, he said.

Harry did just that, says Mrs. Sumpton.

In 1960 in Saskatoon, Jerome ran the 100 metres in 10 seconds flat, equalling the mark set by Armin Hary of Germany. In 1962 he ran 100 yards in 9.2 seconds, equalling the world mark set by Frank Budd of New York and matched by sprinter Bob Hayes.

And in 1966 Jerome bettered his own time, running 100 yards in 9.1 seconds. Hayes also bettered his time to 9.1.

Jerome, 42, was born in Prince Albert, Sask., but spent most of his life on the North Shore in Vancouver. He later attended school in Oregon, while on a Canadian scholarship, and received most of his training there.

In the 1964 Olympics in Tokyo, Jerome won a bronze in the 100 metres, finishing in 10.2 seconds. In the 1966 Commonwealth Games in Kingston, Jamaica, he earned a gold medal. In the latest 1968 Olympics in Mexico city, Jerome reached the final and finished seventh.

"Harry was never a quitter, he never gave up," says Mrs. Sumpton. "The name of the game for Harry was running. He was born to run, it was his first love."

Harry's grandfather, Mrs. Sumpton's first husband, also died very suddenly at age 48.

Jerome, after winning gold medal in 1966 Commonwealth Games in Kingston, Jamaica.

Eagles blast Saanich

Peninsula Eagles looked a little shaky in the first period, but came roaring back in the next two, blasting Saanich 10-3 in a Bantam Rep. hockey game played last Thursday at Parkes Arena.

Saanich looked impressive in the first period, holding a 3-0 lead, but failed to score throughout the remainder of the game. The Eagles on the other hand had no trouble scoring, filling the net 10 times, four goals in the second period and six in the third.

Outstanding players for the Eagles were Steve Ottewill, John Hermesen and Todd Scaber.

All Bay dump Sidney Bakery

In pee-wee House League action All Bay Marine dumped Sidney Bakery 7-3 and Ellehammer doubled Harvey's Sporting Goods 6-3.

League standings are as follows: All bay marine 15 points, Sidney Bakery 12 points, Harvey's Sporting Goods 11 points and Ellehammer 6 points.

The Peninsula Minor Hockey Association Bantam House League All-Star Tournament sponsored by Block Bros. Realty, Sidney, will be held Dec. 28 and 29 at Panorama Leisure Centre.

Recreation Roundup

By Wendy Laing

Panorama Leisure Centre was constructed for the enjoyment of the community, thus services exted to all with programs including facilities for the handicapped.

Taking a plunge in that wonderful water is an excellent form of relaxation. Each Saturday from 11:30 a.m. - 1 p.m. is our rehabilitation swim. Lanes are roped off for those who enjoy swimming lengths with ample space to paddle about in.

For many people all thoughts of handicapped sessions end in the pool. Through a system called teachable mentally handicapped, Panorama has developed a superb session in the arena.

The program is in its second season and has proved to be extremely successful, so Panorama is continuing it now and during the New Year.

Physically and mentally handicapped students attending Keating elementary and Stelly's school are brought together in TMH for various activities. In conjunction with the centre, they take part in a skate session Wednesday mornings from 9 - 10 a.m.

The great importance of such a program is the social aspect involved. Each student follows through the steps of preparing to skate (selecting boot sizes, etc.) independantly — acts we often take for granted.

On the ice, skating skills are taught from standing on the surface to mobility.

Brenda Philip, instructor for TMH notes this sport is highly valuable for students as it aids co-ordination, balance and good posture.

Sole purpose of the session is to help organize a social setting and to create a feeling of achievement.

It's Philip's favorite class each week. "The attitudes of the handicapped surpass those of other students who just don't have that incredible will to learn," she explains.

With teacher Dodie Hooper filling in occasionally, demonstration and communication milestones have been reached.

Brenda couldn't give enough praise to the "para-professions who act as aids to the students."

Often during the week Dad doesn't really get enough time with his small fry. Starting Jan. 9 and each Sunday thereafter is father-and-son-hockey. Back by popular demand the session is from 1 - 2 p.m., regular admission. Each group will be split into age categories for an energy-packed hour.

The games are non-contact with arena staff supervising. Helmets and sticks are required with elbow and knee pads recommended. Family skate is scheduled just before the games, so one can catch a few minutes in that session, before engaging in the fantastic hockey program.

Staff at Panorama Leisure Centre hope your holiday is filled with fitness, food and festivities. The centre has caught the spirit of the season — drop in and take a look! Merry Christmas and best wishes of a safe and happy New Year.

Fungus chips food of the future?

Cow manure, straw, wood chips and industrial sludge could be the ingredients for the food of the future — tasty, nutritious fungus chips.

Dr. Murray Moo-Young of the University of Waterloo uses these apparently unsavoury ingredients in manufacturing his new synthetic food.

He mixes his potpourri of wastes in enormous vats. Then he throws billions of minute edible fungi into the resulting mush.

The fungi feed on the mixture and rapidly grow to three times their original size. After the fungi have died, Dr. Moo-Young dries them and turns them into edible chips that he says taste like yeast.

He plans to conduct more research to determine the food's nutritional value and attractiveness for people.

Dr. Moo-Young can't say how big a market there is for the fungus chips, but more than 500 companies from around the world have requested information on his research.

One British Columbia company has decided to build a pilot production plant near Vancouver using the Waterloo technology.

Envirocon Ltd., a firm of engineering consultants and environmental researchers, say they'll feed the fungi on pulp mill sludge to produce a protein supplement for animal food, which they'll try out on cattle.

Successful experiments have already been conducted on rats and poultry.

Canadian Research Magazine reports that the pulp and paper industry disposes of 400,000 tons of waste sludge a year at an annual cost of $8 million. The sludge could be converted into 200,000 tons of protein worth $60 million.

Meat blitz fights rabies

Airplanes will soon be bombing Ontario forests with raw hamburger in order to fight rabies.

Wild foxes are the principle reservoir of the rabies virus in Ontario; they give it to domestic animals who may then pass the disease on to humans.

Last fall Ontario conservationists tested a scheme to deliver anti-rabies vaccine to the foxes. Ministry of Natural Resources aircraft dropped 120,000 twenty-eight gram (one ounce) meatballs laced with the antibiotic tetracycline. The tetracycline stained the teeth of the foxes eating the meat.

When scientists examined the mouths of foxes trapped in the test area they found that almost 70 per cent of them had eaten the handouts.

This year conservationists will drop hamburger containing an oral anti-rabies vaccine which will immunize the foxes and lower the incidence of the disease.

Drinking tied to social factors

By James Carlisle

Although alcohol and drug abuse are more common among Indians than among other Canadians, Reginald Smart and Carolyn Liban of Toronto's Addiction Research Foundation have collected evidence the problems are due to Indians' social situation, not to any in-born tendencies.

Dr. Smart and his colleagues at the ARF surveyed the use of drugs and alcohol by Indian and non-Indian students living in Ontario.

When the students were matched for geographical and socio-economic (class) background the researchers found little difference in drug use between Indians and other students.

The study shows that young Indians who live in cities and who stay in school have no greater problems with drugs and alcohol than other students.

Other studies, which seemed to show a tendency to alcoholism among Indians, have compared Indians on reserves to whites living in cities. Dr. Smart suggests that such studies, in comparing people of completely different class backgrounds, have overlooked economic and social conditions which might lead to different patterns of alcohol and drug use.

In the ARF survey almost 5,000 students aged 13 to 19 were questioned. Sixty-four Indian students were asked their father's occupation, region where they lived, age grade in school and sex.

The self-reported use of drugs and alcohol by these students was compared to that of 64 non-Indian students who matched them in all categories.

The researchers found that almost one-fifth of the 128 matched students drank alcohol more than once a month. About 15 per cent of them had used cannabis (marijuana) more than 10 times. The only significant difference between the Indians and the matching non-Indians was the Indians' tendency to "binge-drinking".

The Indians did not drink more alcohol per month than the others but they were more likely to drink a lot at one time.

The survey also showed that more than two-thirds of Ontario students had used alcohol in the 12 months preceding the survey; almost a third had used cannabis; about one in 10 had taken LSD and one in 50 had tried heroin.

These results were not a surprise to Dr. Smart. "We survey drug use in Ontario every two years. There was an increase in the use of alcohol and cannabis in 1979. The levels stayed about the same in 1981 with a slight decrease in the use of alcohol," says Dr. Smart.

Beer garden approved

A request by the Central Saanich Lions Club to hold a beer garden during Central Saanich Days July 30, 31 and Aug. 1 was given approval by

Police nab man in restaurant

A local man was caught red-handed by police inside the Odyssey Restaurant, 5th St., Sidney, around 5:20 a.m. Saturday.

Charged with break and enter is William Garden Towle, 24, Sidney. Towle was taken to Victoria by RCMP Saturday and was to appear in provincial court that same day.

RCMP Const. Braithwaite was on routine property check when he noticed the door of the restaurant slightly ajar, which led to the arrest.

The night before police were not as successful, with burglars eluding them after they were called to investigate noises at North Saanich Marina, McDonald Park Rd. around 1:05 a.m. Friday.

Suspects dropped a box of stolen property after police gave chase. It is not known if all the property was recovered and RCMP are still investigating.

In other police news:

•There were two other break-ins reported. A house in the 2200 block on Dolphin Rd., North Saanich, was forcibly entered between 8:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. Monday and a quantity of household and personal property was stolen. A house in the 8900 block, Mainwaring Rd., North Saanich was broken into between 10:45 p.m., Friday and 3:10 p.m. Saturday. Both break-ins are still under investigation by RCMP.

•During the past week seven reported motor vehicle accidents were investigated by RCMP, five of them involving drinking and driving. Criminal charges are pending in two of these cases.

•Random vehicle checks are continuing on main and secondary thoroughfares throughout the Sidney-North Saanich area. Residents are requested to contact police if they observe vehicles being operated in such a manner that they suspect drivers may be under the influence of alcohol.

was the night before Christmas
when all through the house...

Not a creature was stirring, not even a mouse. The stockings were hung by the chimney with care, in hopes that St. Nicholas soon would be there. The children were nestled all snug in their beds, While visions of sugarplums danced in their heads. And Mamma in her kerchief and I in my cap had just settled down for a long winter's nap. When out on the lawn there arose such a clatter, I sprang from my bed to see what was the matter. Away to the window I flew like a flash, tore open the shutters, and threw up the sash. The moon on the breast of the new-fallen snow gave a luster of midday to objects below, when, what to my wondering eyes should appear, but a miniature sleigh, and eight tiny reindeer, with a little old driver, so lively and quick;

I knew in a moment it must be St. Nick. More rapid than eagles his coursers they came. And he whistled and shouted, and called them by name. "Now, Dasher! Now Dancer! Now Prancer & Vixen! On, Comet! On, Cupid! On Donner and Blitzen! To the top of the porch, to the top of the wall! Now, dash away! Dash away! Dash away all!" As dry leaves that before the wild hurricane fly, when they meet with an obstacle, mount to the sky, so up to the housetop the coursers they flew With a sleigh full of toys, and St. Nicholas, too. And then in a twinkling, I heard on the roof The prancing and pawing of each little hoof. As I drew in my head, and was turning around, Down the chimney St. Nicholas came with a bound. He was dressed all in fur, from his head to his foot, and his clothes were all tarnished with ashes and soot. A bundle of toys he had flung on his back, and he looked like a peddler just opening his pack. His eyes how they twinkled! His dimples how merry. His cheeks were like roses, his nose like a cherry. His droll little mouth was drawn up like a bow, and the beard on his chin was as white as the snow. The stump of a pipe held tight in his teeth, and the smoke, it encircled his head like a wreath. He had a broad face and a little round belly that shook, when he laughed, like a bowl full of jelly. He was chubby and plump, a right jolly old elf, and I laughed when I saw him, in spite of myself. A wink of his eye and a twist of his head soon gave me to know I had nothing to dread. He spoke not a word, but went straight to his work, And filled all the stockings, then turned with a jerk. And laying his finger aside of his nose, and giving a nod, up the chimney he rose. He sprang to his sleigh, to his team gave a whistle, and away they all flew like the down of a thistle. But I heard him exclaim as he drove out of sight, "Happy Christmas to all, and to all a good night."

Ardmore's worst storm since 1962 hurricane

Wind velocities recorded Thursday and Saturday were by no means the worst on record on the Saanich Peninsula, but something special must have hit the Ardmore area, where damage exceeded anything veteran B.C. Hydro linemen could remember since a hurricane came through in 1962.

Strongest gust recorded at Pat Bay Airport was at 85 kilometres per hour out of the south-southwest at 6:03 a.m. on Thursday. Saturday's strongest gust was 67 kilometres per hour, at 9:10 p.m.

On both October 12 and 13, in 1962, gusts at the airport exceeded 90 miles (145 kilometres) per hour.

B.C. Hydro reported that as many as 10,000 homes were without power in the lower Island at the same time on Thursday as trees and branches were blown down across power lines everywhere.

The Saanich Peninsula was hit hardest, and Ardmore the hardest of all, with up to a dozen trees down across lines in a single block.

On Braemar, Gleneng and Cromarty Avenues many of the poles were stripped bare by a 10-minute gust early Thursday morning, transformers as well as wires coming down.

Work on much of the mess could not even begin for hours or days until main circuits leading into the area were repaired.

With five and six-man crews working 16-hour shifts, and some work continuing around the clock, power was restored to the last street, Dalkeith, by noon Saturday. That afternoon a big tree blown over a main line blacked out the area again, but only for a few hours.

Ardmore is the one major area on the peninsula where people still depend on electricity for their water supply, with each household pumping from its own well. The area was also without telephones until Friday afternoon.

Damage was also severe on Wain Road. George Aylard had to depend on a generator run off a tractor to milk his 90 cows. Power was back on there at 4:45 p.m. Friday. Damage was also heavy at Deep Cove.

Four boathouses at Cedar Grove Marina in Tsehum Harbour were upended by a gust at about 5:30 a.m. Thursday, doing damage to eight boats. The boathouses were worth about $5,000 each, and damage to the boats was estimated to total about $8,000.

Sidney RCMP Thursday and Friday received reports of seven missing dinghies, from eight to 13 feet in length, and also reports of several boats and dinghies recovered adrift which have not been reported missing.

At Brentwood Bay a 26-foot sailboat sank and there was damage to the Brentwood Inn.

Along West Saanich Road around Patricia Bay waves rolled over the road, creating small lakes on the far side, and washed away the shore so telephone poles fell down. The hydro poles were on the other side of the road.

Only one vehicle was reported hit by a falling tree, a van belonging to Colin Knight, 2736 Island View Road. He was driving west in the 1,000 block of Sluggert Road in Brentwood at the beginning of the Thursday storm when a 60-foot cedar tree, two feet thick, came down on the vehicle, doing about $3,000 damage. He was not injured.

North Saanich mayor Jay Rangel complimented B.C. Hydro crews and municipal and highways department crews for the work done in the cleanup.

He commented that North Saanich people choose to live in a wooded area, so this sort of thing could happen any year. People should be ready with alternatives to electric power, such as kerosene stoves and candles, he said.

Weeding out some trees and possibly some re-routing of the distribution might be considered, he suggested, but as long as there was overhead wiring there would be outages.

Hydro brought in three crews from the Mainland and Nanaimo and also used private contractors. At 7:15 a.m. on Thursday they had nine major circuits out, and at the peak of the repair job there were 45 linemen working at one time.

For several thousand homes power was restored as soon as branches or trees were cleared from main circuits and the circuit breakers put back in, but some others had to await not only re-wiring of their own street, but private repairs to wires on their property as well.

Many temporary outages were caused not by new damage, but because power had to be cut off before repaired circuits could safely be re-connected.

Most areas had power by Saturday afternoon, when a new storm blacked a lot of them out again. It also halted ferries to Tsawassen after 3 p.m.

Some of the repair work is only temporary, and re-wiring will go on for weeks.

While it was the gusts that did the damage it was the sustained wind speed that broke records. On Dec. 14, 16 and 18 average wind exceeded 22 kilometres an hour for a 24-hour period. Previous December record was 17.7.

Santa, beware!

Mr. S. Claus

Dear Sir:

Re: Your proposed activities on the night of Dec. 24-25, 1982 — and your potential liabilities.

This letter is to confirm our discussion by telephone wherein you advised us of the activities you are planning for Dec. 24-25, 1982 and requested that we provide you with a legal opinion as to any legal problems you may bring upon yourself through such activities.

Pursuant to your instructions, we have provided the following brief summary of your potential liabilities:

1. We understand that you plan on entering many homes in the early morning hours of Dec. 25, 1982 and that your usual method of gaining entry is by way of the chimney. We must counsel you that without clear permission from the occupant of each home you enter, you may find yourself charged with "Breaking and Entering" or at least "Being unlawfully in a Dwelling-House" pursuant to the provisions of the Criminal Code of Canada, Sections 306 and 307.

Please note that we have discussed this matter with police authorities and they have advised us that they feel is unlikely any charges would be laid.

2. We have been informed, by a very reliable source, that once you have entered the above-described homes, your clothes are often covered with soot.

Please be careful! While it is unlikely the home owners will press criminal charges against you for breaking and entering and the like, you may find they will be seeking to recover from you for damages you caused to their furniture and rugs as a result of your soiled condition.

3. In referring to our notes, we see you plan to use a sleigh pulled by eight tiny reindeer. May we suggest that you consider using alternate transportation. The use of eight tiny reindeer to pull a large sleigh carrying tons of presents and yourself (and you are no light weight Mr. Claus) may be a breach of the provisions of the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals Act of British Columbia and authorized agents of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals may seize your reindeer.

This would clearly put you in a bad position, "up the creek without a paddle," so to speak.

4. There are further problems that may arise from your use of reindeer and a sleigh in addition to the risk of seizure of your reindeer. We have heard reports that you land your sleigh on roof tops, raising quite a clatter, which often causes people to spring from their beds to see what is the matter.

Please be aware that by so doing, you are undoubtedly in breach of numerous Municipal Noise Abatement bylaws and may find yourself the subject of a fine for the noise you create during the early morning hours on Dec. 25.

We also draw your attention to Section 173 of the Criminal Code of Canada "Trespassing at Night"; everyone who, without lawful excuse, proof of which lies upon him, loiters or prowls upon the property of another person near a dwelling house situated on that property is guilty of an offence.

5. We must also remind you, Mr. Claus, that as you are operating a sleigh in Canadian air space, your sleigh must be licenced and have a certificate of air worthiness and you yourself must be the holder of a valid pilot's license pursuant to the provisions of the National Transport Act and the Air Regulations of the Canadian Air Transport Administration.

6. Finally, we understand that on Dec. 25, 1982, you plan to visit not only Canadian homes but those in every other country around the world. We expect that you have already made arrangements to have the necessary visas, as well as having your passport in order so that you may pass through Customs and Immigration with minimal delay.

Please ensure that you report at a port of entry in each country.

We trust that the above sufficiently apprises you of your legal responsibilities and we hope that you have a successful trip on Dec. 25, 1982.

Yours truly,
POKE, PEEK and PEK
Wilfred Alexander Peek

George Kurbatoff

I would like to declare Dec. 31 of every year as relationship enhancement day. A day to reflect upon where we are, who we are, how we have related to others in the past year, how we have treated ourselves, and what we expect in the future.

What is it that any person really needs for himself as opposed to what he or she really wants? Does one really need many of the things for which one strives?

How much of what one works for is in essence only ego or pride? How many things does one now possess — that they absolutely had to have — are now lying around forgotten, rusting, wasting? Do we eat so much we're really on the verge of gluttony?

If one was to sit down and itemize all their expenses, how much could be cut by eradicating waste and being more frugal?

Think back to the understanding you had or thought you had with your partner when the relationship first flourished. How much has the total relationship changed? Is it just one partner that changed, or both? Was there opportunity for both to grow together even though the goals may have changed?

Do you now have mutual goals you are striving for together, or are there just a conglomeration of individual goals that may or may not fit together?

In what ways have you as an individual changed in regards to your attitude towards your partner? How does your partner treat you differently? Why?

What happened to those two individuals who were so much in love and devoted to each other? Does one think that they now have more responsibilities than they did when they were struggling to get started with their first home, their first child, their first job?

Age should not make any difference, nor should the length of time you have been together; if anything you should now be more comfortable with each other and know exactly how to pleasure and please the other. You are probably more comfortable financially, and with the children being older, have more time for each other as well as yourselves.

Look back on the mistakes you have made in your life; have they made you more tolerant of others making mistakes? If, in fact, you were forgiven for most, if not all, what is it that makes it so difficult to forgive others? To be more tolerant of people who live differently and have different ethics and beliefs from our own?

What is there about you that makes you think your way is the only way to do things?

Setting the last day of the year aside to contemplate what you have achieved in terms of developing personal, interpersonal and impersonal relationships and discussing them with those close to may provide the necessary catalyst for ensuring a little more happiness in the next year. It's like making and doing a new year's resolution list with the emphasis on others rather than yourself. But the payoffs and yields will eventually be returned tenfold to you personally.

The creation of a great happy community would be more successful if we paid less attention to the happiness of the individual and focused more on the multitude.

Do you have a problem, are you concerned with the state of your marriage, the behaviour of your children? Do you need help? George Kurbatoff is a psychologist living in Central Saanich. As a community service, he invites letters from concerned readers. Replies will be given through his regular, weekly column. Write: George Kurbatoff, c/o The Review, Sidney, P.O. Box 2070, V8L 2S5.

New, free legal service

If you want general legal information on anything from traffic tickets to impaired driving, from getting a divorce to making a will — you can now get it by phone. And it's free.

The British Columbia Branch of the Canadian Bar Association has announced the launching of a new public legal information service, appropriately called Dial-a-Law.

The phone-in information service is available to anyone in the province. You simply call the number and the Dial-a-Law operator will play a pre-recorded tape on any one of 75 legal topics that you request.

The phone number is 687-4680, and those outside the Vancouver area are to call collect. It costs you nothing.

The service is operated by the B.C. Branch — the professional association of B.C.'s 5,500 lawyers — and is funded by the Law Foundation of B.C.

Merrill Leckie, B.C. branch president, says the new service provides practical legal information on many topics but is not intended to give specific legal advice to anyone.

Question:

I'm worried that the mortgage company will foreclose on my house because I can't meet the full amount of the mortgage payments. Is there anything I can do to avoid losing my home?

Answer:

This question is being asked more and more frequently by homeowners facing financial difficulties due to economic cutbacks.

If you are suddenly unable to make your mortgage payments as agreed, get together with the lender and explain your situation.

Most mortgage lenders don't want your home — they just want their payments, and they are usually willing to listen to a temporary alternative payment schedule if it seems reasonable under the circumstances.

Ask the lender if he would consider accepting partial payment for a while, adding the rest to the principal. If the lender won't accept your offer of partial payment, deposit this amount each month in a separate account. That will show your good faith in the event the matter goes to court.

The mortgage company may start court proceedings for foreclosure and may insist on full payment of the entire amount owing — not just the missed payments. If this happens, all is not lost. If you can come up with missed payments, you can ask the court for relief under the "Law and Equity Act."

This law permits you to avoid losing your home even at this late stage if you can make good on the missed payment.

If your property is worth less than when you bought it, and the payments are too high for you to bear, you may be requested to abandon your interest by signing them over to the mortgage lender. Be sure to discuss this option with a lawyer.

Rotarians deliver the goods

It was a tremendous effort and lots of fun for Sidney Rotarians as club members gathered for dinner last Wednesday to raise money for The Review/Lions Christmas Fund — and Rotarians had a number of methods for achieving their final magnificent total of $1,253.56.

There was no lavish Christmas dinner for members. Instead of turkey and plum pudding, Rotarians stood in line for a bowl of pea soup, a bun and crackers.

They paid the Travelodge $7.50 a head, with $4 from each going into the Christmas fund. And there were fines, raffles and straight donations.

MURPHY'S LAW — "Saturday Night Live's" Eddie Murphy is hot these days. In addition to his weekly chores on the NBC late-night comedy/variety series, Murphy has started a movie career.

He received raves for his work opposite Nick Nolte in Paramount's "48 Hours." His next project is Paramount's "Black and White," co-starring another "SNL" alumnus, Dan Aykroyd.

BACK AGAIN — William Shatner's successful "T.J. Hooker" series on ABC will feature a special event in the next few weeks when Leonard Nimoy makes a guest appearance. Nimoy will play a veteran cop, who believes justice is not taking the proper course in a rape case involving his daughter. The last time these two teamed on TV, of course, was in "Star Trek," the late-1960s cult favorite.

TELE-NOTES — Now that Pamela Bellwood will only be seen periodically on ABC's "Dynasty," she has teamed with ex-"Little House" star Karen Grassle in NBC's "Cocaine — One Man's Prison."

Theodore Bikel plays 'Another World' millionaire

By Connie Passalacqua

When Theodore Bikel played Teyve in the Broad- way version of "Fiddler on the Roof," his character's fondest wish was expressed in the song "If I Were a Rich Man." But you'll never hear that plaint from Bikel's latest charac- ter — "Another World's" millionaire art collector Harry Davenport.

"Harry is willing to pay millions for Louis St. George's (Jack Betts) art collections, yet when he's hungry, he'll go to a sleazy diner for a hamburger. He's not at all unlike J. Paul Getty who had a pay phone installed in the house for his guests," says Bikel.

"This isn't the first time I've worked in the Brooklyn studios where 'Another World' is taped," Bikel like the Himalayas," says. "More than 20 years ago I did 'The Diary of Anne Frank' there as well as 'There Shall Be No Night,' both for nighttime TV. Now I go into the day."

Bikel says he's now doing soap opera work because "it was there — He estimates that he splits his time evenly between acting and concert performances where he sings folk songs in both Yiddish and English.

Theodore Bikel

Bikel was born in Vienna and moved to Palestine (now Israel) at age 13. He worked in theater both there and in England and immigrated to the United States in 1954. He has also done extensive work on Broadway, including a memorable performance as Captain Von Trapp in "The Sound of Music."

Try writing Roy's agent Art Rush for a trip down memory lane for your husband. His address is 10221 Riverside Dr., Suite 219, North Hollywood, Calif. 91602.

But another actor played Paul

Carol singers entertain

Christmas carols arranged in harmony were featured in the program sung by Sidney Prospective Chapter of Sweet Adelines at three engagements over the holiday season.

The chorus sang for an enthusiastic audience Dec. 6 at Eric Martin Institute. Shirley Page directed singers in Jingle Bells, Carol Medley and her own arrangement of Silver Bells. She was assisted by Joette Dumphy directing Oh Holy Night.

The quartet of Gayle Budd, Carol Fisher, Barbara Brown and Jean Newman sang a carol composed in barbershop harmony titled Christ Mas.

The Sidney chorus, along with Arbutus Chapter, were guests of the City of Gardens Chapter at St. Aidans Hall. Some 85 people in all enjoyed an evening of carols and songs followed by refreshments.

And on Dec. 8 the chorus sang at the extended care unit of Saanich Peninsula Hospital and again Dec. 13 at Resthaven Lodge, where a member of the audience drew the winning ticket for a Christmas hamper.

Later that evening the chorus held its own Christmas party at the Peacock Restaurant. Hamper winner was Mrs. Olga Phillips, 1736 Shearwater Terrace.

Stegasaurus all mixed up

Saanich school board Monday night was treated to a half-hour report and slide show on the enrichment program introduced into district elementary schools last fall, but what trustee Joe Lott saw in it was sex discrimination.

All seven teachers in the program were women, and so were the two board officials presenting the report.

Several of the students in the enrichment program were present, but when trustee

Rubymay Parrott asked them to introduce themselves they were said to be too shy.

Shyness didn't seem, to be a problem for one young lad in grade 2, however. When reference was made to a dinosaur exhibit he told everyone "the Stegasaurus is put together wrong."

Foundation needs volunteers

As the B.C. Heart Foundation's annual February fund-raising campaign draws nearer, the squeeze for volunteers on the peninsula grows tighter.

Area co-ordinator Lorea Kendall confesses she is desperate for both volunteer canvassers and area chairmen. "I especially need about 18 - 20 more area chairmen," says Kendall who will ultimately be responsible for the 1,000 volunteers who will take part in the Feb. 14 - 20 door-to-door fund-raising drive.

Kendall, who has jurisdiction over the "eastern" portion of the greater Victoria area — Sidney, Brentwood Bay, all of Saanich and Oak Bay — said, if possible, she would like to line up more area chairmen before the new year. Basically an area chairman has responsibility for eight to 10 door-to-door canvassers, designating their areas for coverage, passing out the canvasser kits, suggesting ways to approach the householder and collecting the donations.

Canvassers, who will be in great demand early in the new year, are required to volunteer as little as two to three hours of their time; the area chairman somewhat more. Anyone willing to give up an evening or two of his time is asked to call Lorea Kendall either at the Victoria office of the B.C. Heart Foundation (382-3933) or at home (477-6617).

The province-wide campaign will involve 26,000 volunteers aiming to collect $2.3 million for heart research and publicity campaigns related to heart disease. The Greater Victoria goal is 10 per cent of that amount.

Christmas Greetings to everyone from the Peninsula Community Association! The seven programs operating under the P.C.A. umbrella — homemakers, volunteer services, youth programs (STAG), special services to children, community counselling centre, Peninsula Old and New Shop, and the Peninsula Employment Centre, and the hundreds of volunteers who guide, man, and support their various activities, join in expressing their appreciation to the community for the co-operation and support received during the past year.

It's been a time of tremendous change and progress, all in the cause of better service to the community.

Special projects such as participation in the Spirit of Christmas campaign adds a very caring dimension to the on-going services. Imagine the pleasure given to the many volunteers associated with Santa's Toy Shop as recipients gratefully expressed "There wouldn't have been any Christmas for us if it hadn't been for you" and the "you" was meant for everyone in the community who contributed towards this most successful drive for toys, money, and hamper material.

Watch The Review for further details but community support was outstanding. Thank you everyone!

A new brochure is now out which gives details on the PCA's seven services. Do pick one up at the office located at 9788-2nd Street, the PON Shop, or the library.
